

MediPay Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy

This Privacy and Credit Reporting Policy contains important information about how MediPay Holdings Pty Limited ACN 604 221 276, Australian Credit Licence 474336, MediPay Financial Services Pty Limited ACN 602 847 987 and MediPay Private Pty Limited ACN 609 043 629 (MediPay or we or us) collect, hold, use and disclose your personal information and your credit-related information.

When you provide your personal information to MediPay, we know that you expect us to protect it and keep it safe. This policy sets out how we collect, use, hold, disclose and safeguard your personal information. We are committed to ensuring that at all times your personal information remains private and protected.

Our handling of personal and credit-related information is regulated by the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) ('Privacy Act') and the Privacy (Credit Reporting) Code ('Credit Reporting Code'). We are also bound by laws such as the Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorism Financing Act 2006 (Cth), the National Consumer Credit Protection Act 2009 (Cth) and any other requirements of regulatory authorities. We may update this policy, so please review our website regularly.

Notifiable matters

The law requires us to advise you of 'notifiable matters' in relation to how we may use your credit-related information. You may request to have these notifiable matters (and this policy) provided to you in an alternative form.

We may exchange your credit-related information with credit reporting bodies (CRBs). As part of your MediPay credit application, we collect your personal information and may exchange it with a CRB to confirm your identity, assess your creditworthiness, assess your application for finance or your capacity to be a guarantor and manage your finance. This may include:

- obtaining a credit report or to provide other credit providers credit-related information to assist the assessment of your credit worthiness;
- notifying a CRB if you fail to meet your payment obligations; and
- notifying a CRB if a serious credit infringement is committed.

You have the right to request access to the credit-related information that we hold about you and make a request for us to correct that credit-related information if needed.

Sometimes your credit information will be used by CRBs for the purposes of pre-screening credit offers on the request of other credit providers, and for direct marketing by a credit provider. You can contact the CRBs at any time to request that your credit information is not used in this way.

You may contact CRBs to advise them that you believe that you may have been a victim of fraud. For a period of 21 days after the CRBs receives your notification the CRB must not use or disclose that credit information

You can contact any of the following CRBs for more information:

- Equifax Australia – www.mycreditfile.com.au, (13 83 32)
- illion Australia Pty Limited – www.checkyourcredit.com.au, (13 23 33) or
- Experian Australia Credit Services Pty Limited - www.experian.com.au

What types of “personal information” and “credit-related information” do we collect and hold?

When we refer to personal information, we mean information which information from which your identity is reasonably apparent. This information may include information or an opinion about you that we collect and hold throughout the course of our relationship, and from persons you have nominated to supply information. The personal information we hold about you may include:

1. Identification Information, which is information which includes your name, address, contact details and date of birth used to identify you, and used to protect against fraud and unlawful activity.
2. Financial information, which is information required for making credit-related decisions. For example, credit reports from CRBs, bank account information relating to your income and expenses, assets and liabilities, credit and loan repayment history, past and present credit types, employment information, court proceedings, insolvency and default information.
3. Sensitive Information. We will only collect sensitive information about you with your consent. Sensitive information is personal information that includes information relating to your health, including but not limited to, medical procedure information and criminal record.
4. Credit information, which is information which includes your identity; the type, terms and maximum amount of credit provided to you, including when that credit was provided and when it was repaid; repayment history information, default information (including overdue payments); payment information; new arrangement information; details of any serious credit infringements; court proceedings information; personal insolvency information and publicly available information; and
5. Credit eligibility information, which is credit reporting information supplied to us by a CRB, and any information that we derive from it.

Collectively, we refer to credit information and credit eligibility information as ‘credit-related information’. We use your credit-related information to assess your eligibility to be provided with finance and this information may influence credit that has been provided to you or that you have applied for. This includes personal credit and business credit. It can also cover information about you as a guarantor of a loan. Usually, credit-related information is exchanged between credit and finance providers and CRBs.

If you are applying for finance or providing a guarantee, we may ask for Identification information, and also collect the ages and number of your dependants and cohabitants, the length of time you have resided at your current address, your employment details and proof of earnings and expenses. We may collect Financial Information so that we can assess your credit application, your suitability as a guarantor, or to manage your credit with us.

How do we collect personal and credit-related information?

1. Directly from you. This occurs when you complete our online loan application and when you talk to us in person or on the phone. We may record your interactions with us, including your telephone conversations with us and your use of our emails and website.
2. Electronically. This occurs through electronic records created when you use our website, tablet or mobile applications. For example information about your location or activity including the date of and time of visits, which pages are viewed, how you as the user navigate through the website and interact with the webpages (including fields completed in form and applications), IP address, telephone number, information about the device used to visit our website and whether you've accessed third party sites.
3. Third party service providers. We collect information about you from third parties such as credit agencies, accountants, doctors, dentists, financial institutions, landlords, agents, advisers, brokers and/or employers.
4. Public information. We may also collect information about you that is publicly available, for example from public registers or social media, or made available by third parties
5. CRB or lenders. We may collect credit reports from CRBs or opinions from other lenders about your creditworthiness.

How do we hold personal and credit related information?

We will take a range of measures and reasonable steps to protect your personal information. Your personal information will always be stored in a secure environment, and will mainly be stored electronically in cloud or other types of networked or electronic storage centres. We may store your personal information in paper and electronic form. We will also take reasonable steps to protect any information from misuse, loss and unauthorised access, modification or disclosure. All service providers we contract with are required to have a Privacy Policy, and comply with the Privacy Act. However, please note that information you provide to us through electronic means may be insecure in transit, particularly where no encryption is used such as through email.

How do we use personal information?

We collect, use and exchange your information so that we can

1. establish your identity and assess applications for products and services;
2. price and design our products and services;
3. administer our products and services;
4. manage our relationship with you;
5. manage our risks and help identify and investigate illegal activity, such as fraud
6. contact you, for example if we suspect fraud on our account or need to tell you something important;
7. conduct and improve our businesses and improve the customer experience;
8. comply with our legal obligations and assist government and law enforcement agencies or regulators, and
9. identify and tell you about other products or services that we think may be of interest to you.

We may use credit information to assess your eligibility for credit or to become a guarantor, assist you to manage your repayment obligations, administer failures to repay, assess repayment variations, perform other credit maintenance activities in connection with your credit, comply with our regulatory obligations, prevent fraud, and similar. We may also collect, use and exchange your information in other ways where permitted by law.

Who do we disclose personal or credit-related information to?

We may disclose certain personal and credit-related personal information with CRBs to notify them about defaults, update credit reporting information, obtain a credit history report, and any other activities of a similar nature.

The CRBs we may use include Equifax Australia, illion Australia and Experian. You can contact these CRBs or visit their websites (provided above) to view their policies on their management of credit-related and personal information, including details of how to access your credit-related personal information they hold.

We may collect, hold, use and disclose certain personal information and credit-related information about you to assess and administer your credit in default recovery situations, to operate our business and improve our products, to obtain funding and to meet our regulatory obligations. This information may include:

- permitted identification information e.g. names, date of birth, gender, most recent addresses, employer, passport and driver's licence details;
- the fact that you have applied for credit and the amount and type of credit;
- the identity of your current and previous lenders;
- records of previous requests made by credit providers to CRBs for information
- information about you in connection with consumer or commercial credit applications;
- repayment history;
- information about defaults (where repayments over $150 are more than 60 days overdue, in certain circumstances);
- where those default repayments are no longer overdue, or new payment arrangements have been agreed;
- our or another credit provider's opinion that you have committed a serious credit infringement (that is, acted fraudulently or shown an intention not to comply with your credit obligations);
- the start and end dates, credit limits and certain terms and conditions of your credit arrangements;
- information about court judgments against you;
- publicly available information relevant to your credit worthiness;
- certain insolvency information from the National Personal Insolvency Index;
- information derived by CRBs from the above information (e.g. assessments and ratings in respect of your credit worthiness); and
- information we derive from the above information (e.g. our own assessments and ratings in respect of your credit worthiness).

We may also share your personal information with organisations who assist in the management and administration of loans and loan applications; other service providers including organisations that provide archival, auditing, debt collection, banking, insurance, marketing, advertising, valuation, mail-out services, authentication, document management, technology and data processing services; government bodies including courts and tribunals; persons interested in acquiring or funding us; your employer, executor, administrator, trustee, guardian or attorney; your agents, such as financial or legal advisers.

We may also disclose such information as required by the Privacy Act or any other law.

We store credit-related information with your other information. You can access credit-related information we hold about you, request us to correct the information and make a complaint to us about your credit-related information. If we decline your request, we will notify you of our reasons, and tell you how you can contact our external dispute resolution scheme to complain.

Do we use personal information for marketing?

We may offer you products and services by various means, including by mail, telephone, email, SMS or other electronic means, such as through social media or targeted advertising. If you do not wish your personal information to be used or disclosed for the promotional purposes described above, please contact us to express your wish to opt out, or click the "opt out" at the common of any electronic communication.

Requesting access to, or correction of your personal or credit-related information

We will provide you with access to the personal and credit-related information we hold about you. You may request access to any of the personal information we hold about you at any time.

Depending on the type of request that you make we may respond to your request immediately, otherwise we usually respond to you within seven days of receiving your request. We may need to contact other entities to properly investigate your request.

There may be situations where we are not required to provide you with access to your personal or credit-related information, for example, if the information relates to existing or anticipated legal proceedings, if your request is vexatious or if the information is commercially sensitive.

An explanation will be provided to you, if we deny you access to the personal or credit-related information we hold about you.

If any of the personal or credit-related information we hold about you is incorrect, inaccurate or out of date you may request that we correct the information by contacting us via our contact details set out at the bottom of this policy. You will not be charged any fees to access your credit-related information if you have not made a request for accessing the information within the preceding 12 months. If you have made an access request within the preceding 12 months, a reasonable cost may be charged.

If appropriate we will correct the personal information at the time of the request, otherwise, we will provide an initial response to you within seven days of receiving your request. Where reasonable, and after our investigation, we will provide you with details about whether we have corrected the personal or credit-related information within 30 days.

We may need to consult with other finance providers or credit reporting bodies or entities as part of our investigation.

If we refuse to correct personal or credit-related information we will provide you with our reasons for not correcting the information.

Do we transfer your information overseas?

We may disclose your personal information to overseas recipients that provide support functions to us. The countries to which this information may be disclosed include the United States of America, Canada, United Kingdom and countries within the European Union, Philippines, Singapore and New Zealand. You may obtain more information about these entities by contacting us. Where we do this, we make sure appropriate data handling and security arrangements are in place.

Electronic Communications

We are an online lender. As a result, we need to communicate with you, and give you prescribed notices electronically (where permitted). This may be by email, or by placing the notice on our portal for your access. You must have the ability to access notices electronically, and print or save the documents or notices. When you consent to us giving you notices electronically, it is important that you are aware of the following:

1. paper documents may no longer be given; and
2. electronic communications must be regularly checked for documents; and
3. consent to the giving of documents by electronic communication may be withdrawn at any time.
